Larry and Ralph Cimmarusti, brothers and Cimm's co-founders, have a long history of supporting and fundraising for the LAPD. They have a personal tie to law enforcement, with a brother-in-law who retired after 40 years as a LAPD officer.

"We are deeply saddened to learn of the tragic incident with SWAT Officer Simmons. Our hearts and prayers go out to his family - his wife and his two children," said Larry Cimmarusti. "We have a deep respect for the law enforcement community and the officers who put their lives on the line every day. We feel it is our responsibility as members of this community to help these families and show our respect and gratitude for all they sacrifice."

The Burger King restaurant will have a contributions box inside the store for people who want to make a contribution to Officer Simmons' family without purchasing food. All checks should be made out to "Blue Ribbon Trust Account-Randy Simmons."

Cimm's Inc. is owned by Laurence and Ralph Cimmarusti who own and operate more than 50 Burger King restaurants in California and Texas. They have been a franchisee of Burger King Corporation for more than 30 years. Cimm's Inc. is one of the top 100 largest restaurant franchises in the country.
