REPORT OF THE CHIEF OF POLICE

Chief Beck commended officers for their protection and oversight of the second largest event in Los Angeles, the Women's March held on Saturday, January 20, 2018. Over 600,000 participated and there were no significant incidents. On Friday, January 19, 2018, the Chief addressed a group of fifty active NFL players regarding leadership hoping to get them to consider using their platform to speak to youth about violence in our communities. The graduation ceremony this past Friday, January 19, 2018, included 35 new Officers for the LAPD. Chief Beck mentioned his retirement announcement for June 27, 2018, on his 65th birthday, after almost nine years as Chief of Police, and over 40 years on the Department. The Chief felt the timing is good for his retirement and that there is a good selection of potential candidates to consider for the role of Chief of Police. He intends to work until the last day and carry out the duties of Chief of Police until then.
